

MCP Business Advisory – Announcement

I am delighted to share with you some great news from MCP.

We have a significant offering for your business in relation to our Business Advisory & Coaching services.

Over the last six years we have worked with business coaches. They have assisted us in growing MCP and our management team.

We are aware that many of our clients face the same issues and opportunities that we have tackled over the years.

- How do you find and retain good people?
- How do you locate then keep the best clients?
- How do you create a vision for your business that energises you and your team?
- How do I structure, organise and develop my business to maximise my $ return?

Coaching gave us the tools to find answers to these questions – and many others. MCP's David McCleery has been developing a business program and has successfully worked with a number of SME's.

To develop our offering here further, we are delighted to announce that an experienced business coach has agreed to join MCP to extend our existing business advisory and coaching services.

Please extend a MCP welcome to:

Ray Brown

Ray is a business coach and entrepreneur. He operated several of his own businesses in Scotland and subsequently was Managing Director of two large food businesses. He was a management consultant for 10 years in the UK before relocating to Australia with his family in 2005.

Ray loves to work with business owners and management teams who are ambitious to realise their own potential and who want to develop an energising vision for them and for their organisations.

He uses a variety of frameworks to stimulate discussion and to speed effective decision making.

Ray or Dave would be delighted to spend an hour with you, over a coffee, no obligation, to hear your business story. They all love business.

"The best advice I ever received? Get a business coach."

Eric Schmidt, CEO, Google

MCP – Business Solutions Based on Trust